How to Prepare for This Workshop

Bring Your Laptop – We'll Also Use Our 23" Monitor

Review all the materials that are sent to you prior to class.

Read the Do's and Don'ts below.

Read as much of the website as possible.

Read as many of the blog posts as possible.

If you have a medical condition or need special attention, please advise upon registration.

Do's and Don'ts

Do expect support after formal training. Do come relaxed and prepared to share your goals. Materials are detailed. Be in "listening" and "questioning" modes during class.

Don't expect to absorb all the information all at once. Don't leave your cell phone on. Don't bring any type of taping or recording device.

Don't be constantly checking email while training is in session.

Training Materials

A link and password to download and open the training manual will be sent approximately 10 days prior to the first day of class.

What to Expect

A hardcopy of the training manual is provided – no need for you to print it out before class. But, we will work off of the computer primarily. Although some security will be provided during training and breaks, neither Atex Freight Broker Training, Inc. nor the hotel assumes any liability for loss or damage. During class, on the third day, if we have time, we'll use all the computers to search for potential customers and make some actual phone calls. Other clients LOVE doing this.

Policy

No abusive or offensive behavior toward the instructor and/or other participants will be tolerated. Sessions will begin promptly as announced and no effort will be made to refresh the information for those who are tardy.

No smoking in class or building except for designated areas. Beverage and/or light snacks ARE permitted in the training room.

Participants' success in starting and maintaining their own freight brokerage is dependent upon a number of factors both personal to each individual as well as current industry constraints. Therefore, no claim is made as to how much money or success each participant can expect.

Each participant will be responsible for his or her own success and will hold Atex Freight Broker Training, Inc. and its instructors and associates harmless in the event there is no success. Each participant is encouraged to engage his or her own legal, accounting or financial counsel prior to taking action for starting his or her own business.
